

The Button Tree

One morning when I woke up I felt quite peculiar I had a sore throat so I stayed at home with my Mum, Zoe.

Thinking about her work and every time I go there and thought every time I go there, there is only crafts and sometimes a story.

So I thought what it needed and I think it might be perfect for this occasion I thought of a big wooden or plastic tree with lots of string hanging from it and on a table there would be a really big bowl of white buttons and a variety of colours to write or drawn on it.

And once they are done, they simply hang it on a piece of string...some buttons can be big and some small.

The reason why I drew a tree is because it symbolises growth, each button symbolises a happy child with a big imagination and a heart.

Activity

Using the experience of visiting the Children's Holocaust Memorial what is something that you can do that could share with the Holocaust Centre of New Zealand.

- A poem
- A story
- A letter to the centre, designer, a survivor, family of those who died
- A play
- A memory
- A short media piece
